THE SILVER QUESTION.

No Free Coinage Bill Likely to Be Brought Forward This Session. At this time there appears to be an excellent prospect of an agreement among the democrats to avoid a disturbing discussion in the House through the agitation of the silver question. It does not appear that the silver men contemplate any abandonment of their principles or of the hope of securing the free coinage of silver at some time in the not very remote future, but some of the most active and earnest among them will discourage an agitation of the question, when the only thing that could be accomplished would be to divide their party and provoke hostility in the east, where support is necessary to accomplish such revision of the tariff as the party believes to be important. It is regarded as entirely probable that such radical free silver men as Mr. Bland will be satisfied to make a declaration of principles "for the hundredth time" and then to await the coming of a time when there may It does not appear that the silver men con-to await the coming of a time when there may be at least some little prospect of accomplishing their aims.

It is very doubtful that a free coinage bill It is very doubtful that a free coinage bill could be put through the Senate this Congress, though that was the only body to pass such a bill during the last Congress. Everybody understands how the action of the Senate was brought about at that time; that the force bill fight had more than anything else to do with it. The same influences probably cannot be made to work in this Congress, but even if it were possible to pass a bill through both bouses of Congress, it would certainly be vetoed by the President, and nothing would be accomplished by such a course except to excite irritation. by such a course except to excite irritation.

The chances are, therefore, that agitation will be postponed by the friends of free coinage, who are practical enough to care for results only, without any desire to make an empty

Corner Stone Laid of a Monument to Con memorate Trenton's Victory. TRENTON, N.J., Dec. 26. - Today is a memor

ble one in the history of Trenton. Apart from the laying of the corner stone of the first battle monument in New Jersey, the anniversary of the battle of Trenton is being observed with more imposing ceremonies than ever before.
All the houses and places of business in the city are profusely decorated, and this afternoon an unusual occurrence happened in the meeting unusual occurrence happened in the meeting together of three revolutionary societies, namely: "The Society of the Cincinnati," "The Sons of the American Revolution" and "The Sons of the Revolution."

Gov. Abbett and the distinguished guests were escorted in carriages from the capitol to the monument by the City Troop of Trenton. Rev. Dr. Dixon, pastor of the oldest church in Trenton, delivered prayer, and Mayor Daniel Bechtel described the contents of the box placed in the stone. As the stone was lowered into place a national salute of forty-four guns was fired in the stone. the monument, making his address on the subject, "New Jersey, the Battle Ground of the Revolution," after which a salute of forty-four guns was fired and the benediction pronounced by the bishop of Trenton, the Right Rev. Michael J. O'Farrell. Gov. Abbett, in the course of his address, said: "New Jersey can well claim to be the battle ground of the revolution. She was the marching ground of the contending armies. This marching and countermarching of the contending armies across our soil inflicted great distress upon our people. New Jersey also has a most interesting history as the camping ground of the revolution. The situation of New Jersey hoast of marches, encampments and forage on her soil, but history will assign her the glory of being the battle ground of the war.

"On the soil where this monument will stand the first real victory of the war was gained. Here Washington risked all, and today we are commemorating the victory gained by the continental army on the streets of this historical town, December 26, 1776. This was really the most important victory of the American army, for it is almost certain that if Washington had been defeated at this time utter hope-lessness and despair would have followed. It was the dawn of a brighter day. The battle ground is now the peaceful homes of citizens who are justly proud of her advancement and her greatness, and who are full of patriotic pleasure in recalling the incidents of the revolution, and in their name and as their representative I have this day, as governor of the state, laid the corner stone of this monument, which is to commemorate one of the most brilliant victories of the war of the revolution.

A Warrant Out for His Arrest for Being the Cause of the Hastings Disaster. Yongers, N. Y., Dec. 26.-No more victims to the dreadful disaster on the New York Central railroad on Christmas eve at Hastings have and Thomas W. Polley, the New York publisher, which had been lying in the morgue at Tarrytown, were shipped to Yonkers, where Undertaker Riley took charge of them. He has prepared them for burial. He has also prepared for burial the body of Miss Lillian Baldwin, the daughter of Mrs. A. M. Baldwin. At noon today all three bodies were forwarded to New York city, where they will be taken charge of by friends of the deceased. Undertaker Vanderbilt of Yonkers will also ship the body of J. W. White, the Wagner car porter, by express to his friends in the south, whence he came. The body of Dr. Stephen E. Best, the dentist, will be shipped to Boston for burial. It is expected that the friends of the other dead will claim their bodies.

CONDITION OF THE INJURED. At the hospitals in Yonkers the condition of tween Capt. Bourke and a detachment of Garza's band of revolutionists.

Gen. Schofield says that if captured Garza's men will be indicted individually for violation of the neutrality laws and for murder, as they fired upon and killed a United States soldier.

Anxious to Go to War With Chile.

Senator Frye has a nine-year-old grandson, whose nature is rather that of a fighter, as his younger brother can testify. This small boy lives in Lewiston, Me., and recently wrote a letter to his illustrious grandfather, which may be of general interest, and at any rate will, in the Senator's opinion, deter Chile from further insults. The letter reads as follows:

Lewiston, Dec. 20, 1891.

Dear grandper,

At the hospitals in Yonkers the condition of the injuried people remain practically unchanged. Mrs. Homer R. Baldwin, who is at St. John's the surgeons will not say whether she will recover or not. John R. Eagnall, editor of the Pough-keepsie Ecching Star, who is at St. John's Hospital with a badly burned face and internal injuries, is neither better nor worse than last night. His condition is critical. Dennis B. Murphy, the lawyer at 51 Chambers street, who is at St. John's Hospital with a compound fracture of the leg, a fracture of the collarbone, and face and arms badly burned suffers a great deal, but his condition is about the same as it was last night.
